A new chapter in student politics has begun with the formation of “National Student Force”, replacing the dissolved Bangladesh Democratic Student Congress (BAGSHAS). Zahid Ahsan has been appointed as president, while Abu Baker Majumdar takes the role of general secretary in the newly formed organization.

The announcement was made Friday (October 31) night through a press release signed by General Secretary Abu Baker Majumdar.

According to the release, the National Student Force aims to cultivate new leadership in the country’s educational institutions and unite students committed to democratic ideals. The organization seeks to provide fresh direction for the thinking, education, and activism of the younger generation.
