Government does not want to make time to vote: Law Advisor

Asif Nazrul

Law Advisor Dr. Asif Nazrul said the political party has the right to seek a quick election. The government wants to go to the polls after completing emergency reforms on the basis of the consensus of all. In this case, the government does not want to make time

Law Advisor Dr. Asif Nazrul said the political party has the right to seek a quick election. The government wants to go to the polls after completing emergency reforms on the basis of the consensus of all. In this case, the government does not want to make time

Asif Nazrul said a total of 2,000 pages of the three reforms were released. The reform proposals have been separated. In this, it is possible to make half the renovation within a month.

In the July Declaration issue, he said the BNP had prepared a declaration. Student leaders are introducing considerable restraint in this regard. Hopefully everyone will try to speed up the process.

He added, "We will consider the proposals that can be implemented in the executive order. But if the political parties want to discuss them, the government will discuss. ”

Regarding the freedom of expression, Asif Nazrul said, "The Awami League is still able to give programs because of the freedom of expression and freedom of expression and respect for democracy.